Did you know the Brookfield Zoo gives their wolves (they don't have coyotes) 2 acres to roam? You cannot compare that to Rocky's unnatural cage size. Please send him to the Wild Animal Sanctuary.

As a business owner, I signed a pledge to stop animal cruelty in Cook County and to release Rocky the coyote to the Wild Animal Sanctuary. Keeping a captive coyote is bad for the business community.

I enjoyed reading Pat Craig, Executive Director of Wild Animal Sanctuary, answers to Jacqui Ulrich's questions.

"Q: If so, how long did it take for a coyote or coyotes diagnosed as imprinted to "bond with other coyotes" and then live in the same enclosure?

A: Usually the Coyotes that were never raised around other Coyotes become curious and somewhat interested in meeting other Coyotes within a few days to a few weeks – especially after hearing the other Coyotes communicate to each other on a regular basis. The longest period we ever experienced where a human bonded Coyote delayed their sincere interest in other Coyotes was approximately two months. This was a Coyote that came from Mexico where native Indian tribes hand-raised him, but also used him for satanic rituals. His life of being loved – but also severely tortured – caused him great mental trauma. Yet, he eventually began to love living with other rescued Coyotes and flourished as a result.

Q: Has there ever been a coyote or coyotes diagnosed as imprinted that has not been able to live with other coyotes at the Keenesburg facility?

A: No"

Please let this coyote live in a natural environment. Please put your egos and politics aside allow for his immediate release.

Thank you!

Sincerely,
Blake Atkins

The Wild Animal Sanctuary is an incredible place, where Rocky deserves to go. My family and I have visited. He deserves a natural burrow den, as he has none at the River Trail Nature Center.

According to Pat Craig's letter to you, "Dens vary in depth and length based on the topography of the habitat. Dens built in areas with flat ground tend to have longer tunnels leading to the den chamber due to needing to keep the angle of descent to a minimum – while ones built into hillsides or sloping land will be shorter. Most dens are 2 feet underground (where the den box is situated).

Rocky's new habitat at Wild Animal Sanctuary, where a newly arrived coyote lives while it is isolated from other coyotes depends on whether the Coyote will be introduced into an existing habitat with other Coyotes – or a new habitat without other coyotes present.

In the case of introduction within a habitat that has other Coyotes, we place a temporary cage similar to the size cage that Rocky currently lives in within the habitat so the new Coyote can acclimate and meet all of the other pack members. In the case where we build a new habitat, the new Coyote will be placed in a similar cage within the habitat for just a few days to get used to the sights and sounds, as well as establish there are no other animals living within the space."

Release him! Keeping him locked up is barbaric!

Rachel Panicucci

Please read the transfer process of Rocky from his miserable cage at the River Trail Nature Center to the Wild Animal Sanctuary from Pat Craig's letter to employee Jacqui Ulrich:

"What is the standard process for identifying and then adding a coyote or any animal to the Keenesburg facility?

All animal intake is based on numerous factors, such as the amount of space we have available, the current food resources we have, the available animal care staffing on hand, and our confidence in being able to provide any new animal(s) with a great quality of life.

The Sanctuary has traditionally turned down nearly as many animals as we have agreed to take each year. This acceptance and rejection ratio demonstrates how we do not always say "yes" to every animal we are asked to take.

The Sanctuary is always building new habitats for animals that haven't even been identified yet, as we realize there is usually little-to-no time available to get habitats built when an animal's life is hanging in the balance.

The majority of animals we do accept are usually official confiscations – which are initiated by either a law enforcement court case, or by a personal or corporate lawsuit. In most of those cases, there is little time to prepare, so that is why we are always prepared ahead of time.

In some cases, entities realize they will eventually lose ownership or possession of an animal and surrender it/them ahead of the legal battle. In those cases, we will work with the owners to transfer the animals(s) in a more cooperative manner.

Once an animal is identified as coming to the Sanctuary or Refuge, we work with the person or entity that has the animal to find a date and time that works for them to have us come get them. One of our teams would then travel to the location with the appropriate size truck & trailer, or van, to pick up the animal and transport them to Colorado.

Normally, the current owners obtain a health certificate from their veterinarian of choice, who then sends a copy of the certificate to the Colorado State Vet's Office for review. Once that is complete, there is an Import Permit issued and we are able to carry out the physical transfer."

Please release Rocky to the Wild Animal Sanctuary!

Dear Commissioners,

My son brought home his high school newspaper. I read the story about Rocky the coyote. My son said Commissioner Britton was interviewed and was in favor of the coyote going to Colorado. What happened to this? A nice easy decision and everybody remains spineless. With all the things you have going on this is an easy one to resolve. We'll remember this when it comes time to vote.

Thank you.

Commissioners,

I write you out of concern for this coyote at River Trail. What is the big problem? If he died en route to Colorado he'd be better off than in his prison cell. I hear supporters have protested and have sent you correspondence from the sanctuary and it yet it remains deaf to your ears? Why? Let him go to the sanctuary.

Sincerely,
Levitch Family

My daughter came home from school with the school newspaper about the coyote. We're disturbed to learn about this in our community. Since Rocky is the taxpayers coyote and not the centers, we vote to release him to the sanctuary and go encourage all the centers that have animals to have this sanctuary pick them all up. Thank you.

Hello, I'm sure everyone is familiar with Rocky's situation.

Frankly it's time to stop having meetings and calling for special information.

We have all the evidence needed to know Rocky is in terrible condition.

We have the perfect opportunity to give him a much healthier, more humane, and more natural life.

Why is this dragging on? If his keepers truly cared about his well being, they would've jumped at the chance to transfer him. What is this really about?

Rocky is in a horrible situation because of human beings, it's up to us to rectify this.

Please put aside whatever else is motivating you and do the right thing for Rocky.

Send him to the Wild Animal Sanctuary.

Thank you,

Amy Begoun

Please send Rocky, the coyote, to The Wild Animal Sanctuary. Rocky only has a small cage, where he circles and can't run full speed, or smell any of the smells that a coyote in the wild could do.

This attempt at education for children is simply showing them what he looks like - a video in the wild would teach them more. Coyotes are not supposed to be stared at by humans while imprisoned, and when you graciously send Rocky to The Wild Animal Sanctuary, he will be slowly introduced into the wild by experts, where he will form the natural bonds with coyotes that Rocky should have.

This will not cost taxpayers any money. Please allow Rocky to be moved to the sanctuary.

Rocky has been held in an unnatural, confined area for far too long. He is being used as a prop and is being denied the right to live in his natural habitat. He is likely suffering from living in captivity and should be released to Wild Animal Sanctuary.

The coyote is not the property of River Trail but the community and the taxpayers. I am one of 40,000 names (<https://ladyfreethinker.org/sign-relocate-caged-coyote-to-sanctuary-where-he-can-roam-and-be-with-his-own-kind/>) who want Rocky transported immediately to the Wild Animal Sanctuary!

Dear Cook County Commissioners,

Please have compassion and see that Rocky the coyote is released to the Wild Animal Sanctuary in Colorado.

Regardless of how he was raised, he is still a wild animal. He deserves room to roam and companionship. He does not deserve to be drugged, housed in a cage and treated as an "educational exhibit".

Thankyou.

I am in favor of Rocky being moved from his current, very small, deplorable enclosure to the Wild Animal Sanctuary in Colorado. Rocky needs space to roam. He is a pack animal and would benefit from being with more of his kind. His current situation is a disservice to this beautiful creature. Rocky is solely an "attraction" at the Nature Center. There is no other justifiable reason that he is still there. An opportunity for him to be transferred to the Animal Sanctuary has been proposed at no cost for his transfer. I don't understand why the Sanctuary is being met with such resistance. Toni Preckwinkle stated that she thinks the transfer would be "dangerous". I'd like to know her reasoning for this statement. We transfer zoo animals all the time, within the U.S. and internationally. So why would a young, healthy Coyote be any different? He's suffered enough - 5yrs of isolation and captivity. Please, please - do the right thing, the humane thing and let this animal go to Colorado.
